RESPONSE TO TRUSTEE'S OBJECTION TO CLAIMS FILED BY CREDITOR CYNTHIA DIANE BLANCHARD

Creditor Cynthia Diane Blanchard, pro se, hereby submits this response to the Trustee's Objection to (i) Claim No. 2-2 filed in Copper Tree, Inc., and (ii) Claim No. 1-2 filed in Green Copper Holdings, LLC, and respectfully states as follows:

I. INTRODUCTION

The Trustee objects to my claims on three grounds: (1) that they are duplicative across consolidated estates, (2) that the loans I made to the Debtors should be recharacterized as equity, and (3) that he should retain the right to object to specific advances at a later time.

I filed an amendment clarifying that I do not seek double recovery, and the Trustee has acknowledged this amendment and withdrawn the duplication concern. However, the remaining objections are unsupported by the record and should be denied.

My claims are supported by QuickBooks records, bank statements, and internal accounting documents that show real, traceable cash transfers. I have not received any compensation of any kind for my work. The Trustee has had access to all relevant financial documentation for months, and there is no justification for recharacterizing the loans or reserving the right to challenge them again later.

II. BACKGROUND

I am the founder and majority shareholder of Copper Tree, Inc. Over a period of nearly two years, I worked full-time without receiving any salary, management fee, or other compensation. This labor constituted my equity investment in the company.

Separately, between September 30, 2022, and January 22, 2025, I personally loaned the Debtors a total of $285,107.88. These loans were made incrementally and on an as-needed basis to cover essential operating expenses, including payroll, utilities, vendor obligations, and legal costs—particularly those arising from the surprise lawsuit filed by the McFarlin Group on September 27, 2024.

I did not request, receive, or direct any monetary compensation for my work through any affiliated or third-party entity. My contributions of labor and time were wholly separate from the loans. My Proof of Claim reflects only personal, out-of-pocket cash advances made directly to the Debtors and does not include or relate to any services rendered. These were bridge loans structured with arm's-length characteristics and made with the expectation of repayment.

The final loan on January 21, 2025—made just hours before the bankruptcy filing—was made to cover urgent obligations during an operational crisis and bears all the hallmarks of a commercial loan, not an equity contribution. Each advance is recorded in the company's QuickBooks ledger and corroborated by corresponding bank records, all of which have been provided to the Trustee.

III. RESPONSE TO CLAIM OF DUPLICATION

I filed parallel claims in both estates in light of early uncertainty about how the bankruptcies would be administered. Upon clarification, I filed an amendment on June 7, 2025, (Exhibit A) which stated:

“The creditor does not seek double recovery and defers to the Trustee's discretion as to which estate is ultimately responsible.”

The Trustee has since amended his objection to acknowledge this amendment and withdraw the duplication concern. I appreciate the correction and believe this resolves the issue of dual filings.

IV. RESPONSE TO RECHARACTERIZATION ARGUMENT

The Trustee seeks to recharacterize my loan as an equity contribution based primarily on the absence of a fixed maturity date and my ownership interest. However, this interpretation misapplies the governing legal standards and is not supported by the factual record.

The loans were structured as bridge financing, made incrementally as needed to preserve the Price Tower and sustain daily operations during a period of ongoing financial distress. They were made in good faith, with the clear intent and expectation of repayment. While a future sale or re-financing—such as the anticipated October 2024 Ten-X auction—was expected to provide the likely source of repayment, repayment was not contingent on any specific event or outcome. The advances were consistently treated as debt, properly recorded in the company's financial records, and supported by contemporaneous documentation.

After the McFarlin lawsuit derailed the auction on September 27, 2024, I continued to advance funds to cover urgent legal and operational expenses. During this period of heightened instability, there was no practical opportunity to impose a fixed maturity date on each incremental loan. Nevertheless, each advance was made with the expectation of repayment, in accordance with a continuing loan relationship.

This type of emergency insider financing is not unusual in bankruptcy. In In re SubMicron Systems Corp., 432 F.3d 448 (3d Cir. 2006), the court emphasized that recharacterization turns on the parties' intent—not the presence or absence of formal terms such as a maturity date—particularly where funds are advanced to meet critical operating needs. Similarly, in In re AutoStyle Plastics, Inc., 269 F.3d 726 (6th Cir. 2001), the court found that an insider's ownership interest alone does not transform a loan into equity, especially when surrounding facts demonstrate a bona fide lending relationship and commercially reasonable terms.

My decision not to demand repayment prepetition was intended to protect the company's fragile financial position—not evidence of an equity contribution.

This loan is supported by a written loan agreement (Exhibit B) and a detailed transaction history from QuickBooks Online (Exhibit C). The Trustee also has access to corresponding bank records confirming each deposit. I am prepared to provide any additional documentation the Court may require.

V. OBJECTION TO TRUSTEE'S "RESERVATION OF RIGHTS"

The Trustee now seeks to reserve the right to object in the future to unspecified "advances" even if the Court sustains the validity of my overall claim. I respectfully object to this reservation.

Allowing a future objection would undermine the principle of finality and efficiency in bankruptcy proceedings. While Rule 3007 establishes the procedure for objecting to claims, it does not support the Trustee's attempt to reserve rights for future, unspecified objections. Similarly, 11 U.S.C. § 502, which governs the allowance of claims, emphasizes the importance of prompt and efficient claim resolution.

If the Court determines that the loan is valid debt, the entire claim should be allowed without further reservation. Piecemeal objections at a later stage would be both unnecessary and counterproductive, especially given the transparency and completeness of the documentation already provided. Such an approach would delay the administration of the estate and increase costs, contradicting the goals of judicial efficiency and finality.

VI. REQUESTED RELIEF

I respectfully request that the Court:

- Deny the Trustee's objection in full;
- Reject the Trustee's request to recharacterize the loans as equity; and
- Reject the Trustee's reservation of rights to object to specific advances at a later time.

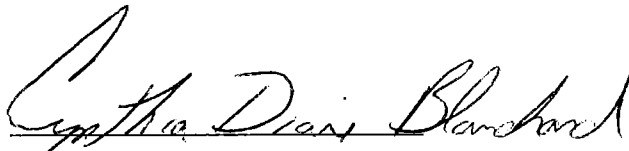

VII. REQUEST FOR CONSIDERATION WITHOUT HEARING AND CLARIFICATION OF INTENT

I respectfully submit this response to clarify and support the validity of my claim, which was filed in good faith and is supported by contemporaneous documentation, including the executed loan agreement and transaction logs submitted here as exhibits. Corresponding bank records have already been provided to the Trustee and are not re-submitted in this filing in order to preserve confidentiality.

I recognize the importance of minimizing administrative costs to the estate and do not wish to create unnecessary burden for the Court or the Trustee. Accordingly, I am not requesting a hearing at this time and respectfully request that the Court consider this response on the written record, consistent with standard practice in claims resolution where no material factual dispute exists. However, I expressly reserve all rights to request a hearing should it become necessary to protect my interests or clarify any contested matters.

I maintain that the loan was valid, legally binding, and beneficial to the estate, and I submit this response to ensure the record reflects the full factual and legal context surrounding the claim.

Respectfully submitted,

Amended Claim Filing (Filed June 7, 2025)

Amendment to Proof of Claim - Copper Tree, Inc. (Case No. 25-10084-T)

Creditor: Cynthia D. Blanchard

Claim Amount: $269,554.69

This claim was originally submitted based on internal accounting that allocated $269,554.69 of the total $285,000 loan amount to Copper Tree, Inc. Following further review and based on the Trustee's initial representation that the bankruptcies of Copper Tree and Green Copper Holdings, LLC were being jointly administered, the full loan amount was submitted and supported with documentation in Case No. 25-10088 (Green Copper Holdings, LLC).

This Copper Tree claim is retained solely to preserve creditor rights in the event that the Trustee or the Court reallocates liability for any portion of the loan to Copper Tree, Inc. The creditor does not seek double recovery and defers to the Trustee's discretion as to which estate is ultimately responsible.

Date: June 07, 2025
